Hassol is one of the high use bulls in Europe for crossing with Holstein cattle. In France, and many other parts of Europe there is an increasing use of Beef breeds over Dairy cattle to produce high yielding and high performing slaughter cattle. In France there are almost no Angus or Hereford cattle, the breeds Australian dairy producers would often use. As a result the French have, over many years, developed within their biggest breed, the Charolais, a group of bulls that are easy calving with extreme muscularity at an early age, with high yielding carcasses and early finishing ability. These Charolais bulls are not intended for purebred production; rather they are purpose built dairy cross meat and money makers!
